North Carolina Population and Climate Risk Index Comparison by County

Displayed is North Carolina counties by climate risk and population using a bivariate color scheme. Darker blue highlights a greater risk to climate events. Darker red highlights denser populations. This identifies large populations in need of greater climate resilience and resource planning.

